The PRBV concurs in general with the submission of the Council of Psychologists Registration Boards of Australasia Inc ('CPRB') but in addition offers this additional comment.

PRBV comment on limited registration

PRBV believes that the interaction between limited and general registration should be articulated within the legislation. For example, is it intended that holding limited registration could result in the obtainment of general registration? PBRV believes that it should be clearly articulated in the legislation that the holding of limited registration is not a pathway to general registration.
